

Information on Specialist Disability Accommodation and Shared Supported Independent Living Accommodation in the Social Housing Sector

The SA Housing Trust provides public housing and other housing solutions for low-income South Australians, including properties with accessibility features. The Trust does not provide Specialist Disability Accommodation or joint tenancies to accommodate customers with supported independent living funding that requires them to share with people who are not family. You have indicated you require this form of accommodation, and therefore registering for public housing will not meet your needs.

Therefore, you have been registered for Community Housing as some community housing providers offer Specialist Disability Accommodation and shared supported independent living. You are encouraged to contact community housing providers offering the form of accommodation you require directly to explore if they have housing appropriate to your needs. You may also wish to consider private market options.

How to find a community housing provider

- Visit the sa.gov.au website. You can use the search bar to type 'find a community housing provider', or go directly to:

- The website lists which areas each provider covers and how to contact them.

Other options

- The private rental market also offers Specialist Disability Accommodation and shared supported living.
- For guidance on these choices, speak with your Support Coordinator, who can help you find and manage suitable support.
